

University_Rankings

Countries	Ranking System	Ranking Criteria	Universities	University Years
Average universities per country	Popularity of each ranking system based on the number of universities included	Importance of each ranking criterion within a ranking system.	Representation of countries geographically	Trends over-time for student enrollment, student-staff ratio, and student diversity for each university.
Countries with highest number of universities		Analysis of the relationship between ranking criteria and Universities' scores/rankings.	Identification of universities that consistently rank highly across multiple ranking systems or criteria	Identification of universities with notable changes in student-related metrics over time.
Representation of countries geographically	Comparison of university rankings across different systems to identify differences.	Criteria's heavily influencing universities' overall rankings	Analysis of universities performance over time to identify trends and patterns.	Comparison of universities performance in different years to analyze growth or decline.
Evaluating each country universities based on a variety of metrics.	Analysis of the methodology and standards applied by each ranking system to identify anomalies and priorities.	Comparison of universities performance based on specific ranking criteria to identify areas of strength or improvement	Identifying universities with notable changes in rankings or student-related indicators.	Analysis of the relationship between student-related metrics and universities rankings or performance.
Identifying countries with highest proportion of female or international students.	Trends over time in the introduction or development of ranking systems.	Potential changes in ranking criteria over time and their impact on universities' rankings	Comparison of universities performance based on different dimensions (rankings, student demographics, etc.) to identify outliers or unique characteristics	Identification of universities with consistent or improving student-related metrics across multiple years.
	Comparison of rankings from various systems and possible effects on university reputation			